

Rumblestar: Chapter 21

Activity 1: Look up the meaning of the word 'unorthodox' and use it in your own sentence.

And had it not been for Utterly, who, during her time locked up in Topplecave, had come up with a brilliant yet highly unorthodox new system for the mills (involving emptying the most-loved Bottling shop in the village – Blend & Bottle – of their blending staffs to replace the spokes on the mills' wheels that the Midnights had chewed away and then raiding Swoopers – Dapplemere's bank – for their unusually shaped comet-coins to act as cogs inside the mills), it would have taken them weeks, despite the speed at which Activity 2: Matt and Rose have mnemonics for their names, where each of the letters stands for words describing who they are.

Try creating one for your own name.

'I'm Matt, by the way – stands for Multitasker And Terribly Talkative – and that's my sister you saw earlier at Topplecave.' He pointed to the sun scamp reading an instruction manual entitled Handling Marvels Over Long Distances on the steps of a mill. 'She's called Rose – stands for Reading Over Strenuous Exercise.' Matt gave Zip's basket
