

NASTY WRITING!

Emotive adjectives

Emotive language is used to make the reader feel emotions:
eg Have you ever considered spending your holiday lying on pure white sand beneath an extraordinary azure sky?

It uses more powerful words - but be careful not to go over the top and use too many one after the other!

Always read your writing out loud and check how it sounds.

Write 3-4 sentences using some of the adjectives below: imagine you're persuading someone to visit a place you know well. It could be a town or park, the beach, or your favourite restaurant!

Challenge: can you also include any of the other language from our Nasty Writing this week (imperatives/rhetorical questions)?

- extraordinary
- remarkable
- amazing
- astonishing
- incredible
- phenomenal
- unbelievable
- startling
- tantalising
- attractive
- unmissable
- unique
- sensational
- outrageous

Eg Take this unmissable opportunity to visit the sunny seaside town of Worthing - it has an incredible variety of restaurants and cafes, and an attractive beach and promenade to stroll on during a summer's evening.
