

COP26 has been going for a week & so far, although few decisions have pleased activists like Greta Thunberg who feel it is just blah, blah, blah!

One of the problems is that many countries in the west have already had their industrial revolutions which means they are able to produce goods & sell them. Those countries that are not so advanced don't want to miss out but would still use the old materials which are so damaging.

Latest prompt

Look at this picture & write about how it makes you feel.

