2. National Numeracy Day – All – Information

Wednesday 15th May was National Numeracy Day. The National Numeracy Day website (<https://numeracyday.com/>) has a number of fun activities and helpful strategies to encourage people of all ages to start improving their number skills. Last year, over 25,000 people used the website to start improving their numeracy skills. We would encourage all families to visit the website. It may be that your child wants to complete or adapt one of the suggested activities as a Take Away task or that you want to access the site to help develop your own numeracy skills. There are nearly 900 helpful resources available and over 1000 suggested ways to use numeracy. Numbers are hugely important in everyday life, be it from cooking, to working out your weekly shop or organising your mortgage or rent payment. Being better with numbers can change your life and open up so many possibilities. See how this can help you by following this link:

We'd love to hear your success stories.
