Nasty Writing – 3 challenges

A non-chronological report is a factual piece of writing which contains lots of information about a topic. In school, children have been writing a report about the human body. Use the resources on the right to write your own report. You should aim to use conjunctions, varied punctuation, paragraphs, headings and subheadings full stops and capital letters. Using prepositions will also help you to describe where parts of the body are located. There are some bullet points containing information to include in your writing. If you're really struggling to write about the human body, write about something that interests you, but remember the writing features that you need to include. Good luck!
